“The students from Wolcott Mills Elementary School were able to walk down and visit with the artists during the end of the residency. The students were very engaged and from the very beginning, found common ground with the artists. We had a number of students share their ability to use the lifts because of their upbringing of living on farms. They cheered for artist Nicole Salgar when she took the lift all the way up to the top of the building and painted for them. There were no shortages of questions from the students and had their time not run out, they would have stayed with the artists for the rest of the day.” – Sandy Miller, Director, Remington Wolcott Main Street
